ACCENT ON RHYTHM

"YOUR daughter will be a fine singer some day," Mr. Jackson, Alice's singing teacher, was telling Mrs. Anderson. "If she keeps on singing and practicing, there's no telling what her future might hold."

Mr. Jackson beamed proudly at Alice. Mrs. Anderson beamed happily at Mr. Jackson. And Alice smiled weakly at both of them. How could she explain her own thoughts to either of them? People liked to hear her sing, she knew that. Whenever she gave out with her clear soprano voice on some concert number or operatic aria at a recital, she was always called back for encores.

What if all this training was building for her future? There was the present to think about, too. And whenever Alice thought about her present, it got tangled up with Randy "Bop" Billings. Randy was wonderful. Randy had eyes that crinkled up into the friendliest smile in the world. Randy always said "hello" to her in a way that made her feel he understood, although she knew deep down inside that he didn't. And Randy was leader of the school jazz band.

He admired her, Alice knew. But he admired her in the way one fellow musician admires another, even though he might not go in for that particular brand of music himself. For Randy and his band, plus the whole school, considered Alice a "long hair"—nice to listen to once in a while, but definitely not a "gone" chick.

And more than anything else Alice wanted Randy to think of her as "gone." But how? She tried singing blues and torch songs to herself while she was practicing—and to her own ear they didn't sound bad. But she hadn't quite dared to ask other people about them.

Just yesterday in the cafeteria she had overheard a conversation between two of the Bop Boys that set her dreams afire again. She'd been eating her lunch alone, and her back was to the next table where the drummer and the piano player sat down.

"We could really use a singer," the drummer said.

"I know," the pianist returned. "But who? Everybody agrees with Randy that we don't want just another singer. We've got to find somebody who's really gone, and there just doesn't seem to be anyone in the whole school."

There was more talk about the kind of singer the band wanted—someone who looked "gone," who sang "gone," and who could really "send" audiences. But Alice's mind began to wander. How wonderful if she could be a singer for the band! Randy would notice her then—really notice her.

Now the vision crossed her mind once more—the vision of how she'd look singing with the band. No more plain skirts and sweaters, no more low-heeled slightly scuffed loafers, no more hair-do just like everybody else's. A magic wand had waved over the Cinderella, and she'd become a princess—a "gone" princess, in a shimmering white gown, with gossamer-like high-heeled silver sandals and gleaming upswep hair. All this and a voice that could only come from an angel. And at the evening's end handsome Randy in a white tie and tails would bring her flowers and escort her home in a limousine.

Alice forced herself back to reality, and the dream bubble burst. She knew how it would be if she cornered Randy in the band office and offered him her services as a singer. The worst that could happen would be that he wouldn't listen to her at all and would make some excuse to keep her from making what he'd be sure would be a fool of herself. It was like a vicious circle, she thought wearily. You get a reputation as one thing, and then nobody believes you could be anything else. You're even afraid to try the new thing because people might just laugh at you.

The next day the whole school was buzzing with excitement. In every room was a big "Amateur Night!" it read. "Winner to enter state finals! Scholarship awards to winners!"

One crowd of students stopped murmuring as Alice passed by on the way to her seat. "Hi, Alice!" called one boy. "Which operatic aria are you going to do this time?" The others laughed with him, but Alice just smiled back.

It's hopeless, she thought. How could she ever get an audience to fulfill her dream when something else was always expected of her? If only she could gather up enough courage to make her dream real! If only someone would help her! Just one person behind her, one person who believed in her, and perhaps she could go through with her plan—even if everyone else thought it was a big joke.

That night at the end of her practice session Alice began to sing one of her favorite blues songs. Her mother was sewing in the next room; and the song had the desired result. Before she had finished, her mother had stepped inside the room and was watching her with a strange expression on her face. "I don't remember Mr. Jackson's giving you that song," her mother said when Alice stopped singing.

"He didn't," Alice said. "Oh, mother," she blurted out, "was it so awful?"

Her mother shook her head. "No," she said slowly, "it's just so... so different from the way you usually sound."

Quickly, Alice told her mother the whole story of her dream and of Randy and of what she wanted to do on Amateur Night. "Is it wrong for me to want something for now instead of the future?" she finished.

Her mother studied her thoughtfully, as if she were seeing something new in her own daughter. "Why, dear, it all depends," she said softly. "I don't see why you can't have both." Alice looked up hopefully. "Now, let's see," she continued critically, "if you're going to sing differently, you should look different, too, shouldn't you?"

Amateur Night arrived, all too quickly. Alice had told no one about her plan. She had announced that she was going to sing, but had avoided mentioning the name of her number. Of course, everyone assumed she would perform her usual type of song.

Alice managed to arrive backstage just before her number, and she kept on her cloak until she heard Randy announce, "And now we present Alice Anderson. She'll announce her own song."

A round of applause, Randy's bow to her side of the stage, a deep breath—and Alice was on stage. A gasp of surprise went up from the audience, but Alice just smiled calmly at them, as if she always looked like this when she sang. Her song was a torchy number, one of the band's specialties. As she nodded to Randy to begin, she caught the expression on his face. His eyes were bulging out, and his mouth was hanging open, but he managed to give the signal to start.

Alice began singing, and by the time she finished the first chorus, everything seemed better. She looked like her dream, and she sang like her dream.

Her upswept hair-do showed off her small gleaming earrings; silver sandals peeped out from beneath a misty white gown. And her voice blended perfectly with the band. She felt as if she'd always been singing with the Bop Boys—and they seemed to feel it, too.

When she finished, the audience burst out with the biggest round of applause any of the contestants had received. It was against the rules for anyone to do an encore, but Alice was called back for half a dozen bows. Each time Randy took her hand and led her on stage. Only one thing was still missing. Randy hadn't yet told her what he thought of her number, and those doubts wouldn't go away until he did.

Finally, Alice was told that she was to go to the state finals, and the evening was over. She turned to gather up her cloak and find her parents. She felt that the main part of her dream, the part about Randy, wasn't going to come true after all.

Just then Randy appeared at her elbow. "Alice," he said huskily, "you were terrific." Alice smiled gracefully. This was something at least. "And we wondered," Randy continued, "if you'd be singer for the band."

Alice's eyes opened wide. Maybe it was coming true after all. "Oh, Randy," she breathed, "I'd love to."

"Okay, then," Randy returned. "Just one more thing." Alice looked at him questioningly. "Since I'm band leader, I have to take charge of everything, and I think it's only right that I escort you home, don't you?"

Alice nodded, and Randy led her out to his car. It was just an old jallopy, but to Alice it looked like a long, shiny limousine!

ACNUREL...
Available to YOU

Used by Leading SKIN DOCTORS (dermatologists) FOR OVER 10 YEARS

Whether young or old, if YOU suffer from skin blemishes you'll be thrilled to know that now for the first time ACNUREL is available to you directly from the PURELON Laboratories.

A COMPLETE MEDICAL TREATMENT

PURELON'S ACNUREL is not merely a skin cream . . . It is a complete medical treatment which is the product of long years of research and clinical tests. . .

FIRST, ACNUREL Detergent thoroughly penetrates and cleanses the affected area, removing foreign matter lodged in the pores. Dirt is attracted to your skin by oily secretions of over-active sebaceous glands, and ACNUREL Detergent (skin cleanser) counteracts oiliness, and removes the dirt and foreign matter.

ACNUREL CONCEALS WHILE IT HEALS

SECOND, PURELON'S ACNUREL Cream carries out the medication or healing stage of the treatment. While its active ingredients are attacking the infection, ACNUREL Cream conceals the blemishes under a pleasant, natural looking film, over which make-up can be applied . . . YOU will gain confidence when you can face the world with a clear, attractive-looking skin . . . While ACNUREL Cream is at work with its soothing, healing effects it is also preventing RE-INFECTION of the surface areas, raising scales, helping heal and clear rashes, and helping to prevent PERMANENT PITTING and SCARRING.

A MEDICALLY TESTED FORMULA

ACNUREL is a tested, proved medication which has been used for over 10 years by LEADING SKIN SPECIALISTS to help clear up PIMPLES—BLACKHEADS—ACNE—ENLARGED PORES and other EXTERNALLY caused skin blemishes. . . NOW, you too can join the thousands who have found ACNUREL treatment successful where ordinary skin creams failed . . . Boys, Girls, Men, and Women to whom ACNUREL gave confidence and a new outlook on life!

BLACKHEADS "PET HATE"

Say Men, Girls in Choosing Date

What a "black mark" is the blackhead... according to men and girls popular enough to be choosy about dates!

"Nobody's dreamboat!" "Nobody's date bait!" And that's not all that's said of those who are careless about blackheads. But blackheads ARE ugly! Blackheads ARE grimy! And they DON'T look good in close-ups!

So can you blame the fellow who says, "Sure, I meet lots of girls who look cute at first glance. But if, on that second glance, I see dingy blackheads, it's good night!"

Or can you blame the girl who confesses, "I hate to go out with a fellow who has blackheads. If he's careless about that you're sure he'll embarrass you in other ways, too!"

But you — are YOUR ears burning? Well, you've company and, sad to say, good company. There are lots of otherwise attractive fellows and girls who could date anyone they like if they'd only realize how offensive blackheads are... and how easily and quickly they could get rid of them... if they want to!

"He-Man" Often Guilty of Blackhead Crime

Take your "he-man"... super at track, games, sports of all kinds... who thinks that after just a shower he's ready to go anywhere! And won't the girls all admire his muscles!

Sure they would! But not many dance floors are set up for hunky rascals! He can't show off his snappy left hook when only cokes are in the ring. The "he-man" who's also clean-cut, will get the breaks wherever he is.

Even Cute Girls Become Careless

Easy, too easy, for a girl to think that if she has the latest in clothes and hair-do she needn't bother about blackheads. A little more make-up, she guesses, will take care of that. BUT MAKE-UP WON'T HIDE BLACKHEADS! Not unless it's plaster of paris, maybe! And even good make-up "slips" at a dance! So don't take chances, cute though you may be!

TAKE THESE TIPS TO BANISH BLACKHEADS

Keep skin clean by washing morning and night with warm, almost hot, water. Use good soap and plenty of it. And finish with cool water.

Extract every blackhead as soon as you see it — with a SAFE extractor. Don't use finger nails. Don't squeeze. That may mean infection, injured tissues, a marred skin.

Just be clean! Be quick! And be safe! That's easy! And that's ALL!
